What is a “self-ish” life?

At current situation, I feel individuals have lost “spiritual looseness” which is the foundation for them to keep their lives as they are. There might be more people out there who are re-recognized the life-styles which are truly to their own.

“The usefulness of the useless” is the saying by Zhuangzi, and I reconsider the difficulties in classifying things into “useful” and “useless”. Probably, the world is not formed by selecting one of those choices. Even if a human is the one which consumes or subject to be consumed, we cannot measure the person himself by this distinction. Life is the same as well. Moreover, I take it as the one which cannot be classified into success or failure.

In 2019, before the year changed to new one, I was blessed with a son. Since then, days have past like the speed of light. Looking back now, I might just have been consuming things, time, and myself. Without the time to face my creative activity, I think I would not have been able to keep my life which is more like myself. Then, recently, each family member 's “self-ish” life has started forming gradually.

I hope you all can visit, by enjoying the deep greens of the Aokigahara, and spend the “useless” time at the gallery.
